Advantages

- A unique investment strategy focusing on long-term leased real estates with an above-average length of lease contracts of 10 or more years enables extensive diversification of risks within sectors, countries and the expiration period of individual lease contracts.
- The fund's return does not influence behavior on the capital markets (such as shares or bonds), but the rental income and market value of real estate owned.
- Even with small amounts, you become a co-sharer in a varied portfolio of high-quality office, retail and industrial real estate as well as logistics and production facilities.
- Professional fund management – an experienced portfolio manager searches the market for the best investment opportunities on the real estate markets in the Czech Republic and other Central European countries. • For regular investments, a discount on the fee for the purchase of share certificates. • Fast availability of funds (usually within a week).

of the product specified in General attributes. • In the event of an unfavorable development of the investment, they are able to bear the possible loss, which is illustrated by performance scenarios, see Key Information Document (KID). • are interested in investing within the recommended investment period specified in General attributes. • This fund is not intended for investors (negative product target market) who are unable to bear the possible loss of invested funds in the event of an unfavorable development of the investment. • The client's compatibility with the product's target market will be evaluated during the purchase process.

• The value of the share certificate may fluctuate significantly during the investment duration, and therefore the return of the originally invested amount is not guaranteed. • In view of its focus the fund bears the risk of the investment and real estate market. The credit risk stemming from the long-term obligations of the tenants is managed by various forms of income hedging. • A currency risk can arise by holding buildings leased and valued in Euros, and is partly managed. • The fund's liquidity risk is directly proportional to the share of fund capital invested in low-liquidity assets. The risk of concentration is the specific risk of a limited number of real estate or sectors. • Be aware of the risk of inflation. Investors should be aware that the fair value of the investment, including any real yield, may fall with regard to how the inflation reduces its value. • Investors should not base their investment decision solely on the information provided here as they may fall outside the target market or in a negative target market of this product and this product may not be suitable for all investors.

Performance goal and investment strategy

The real estate fund is intended for conservative and dynamic investors with a long-term investment horizon who want to draw the benefits from investments in top quality commercial real estate without problems associated with its management or purchase and sale. The fund's performance objective is to outperform Czech government bond yields in the long term by investments in a broadly diversified commercial real estate portfolio. It invests mainly in logistics, industrial, retail, office and other commercial real estate, particularly in the region of Central Europe. The real estate part of the portfolio adds stability to the fund in the form of long-term lease agreements with creditworthy tenants so the given real estate is critical to its operation. The lease agreements for the fund's buildings are of above-average length and are usually secured for 10 and more years. This helps minimise the loss of income related to the subletting of the real estate and thanks to the annual rent increase to profit from the rise of the price level. The share of the fund's real estate component accounts for up to 90% of its value. The fund holds the remaining approx 10% in quick liquid financial assets to secure payment of redeeming certificate holders. The fund does not pay a dividend. The fund's income is reinvested.
